COMMISSIONERS AWAIT RULING ON EXPENSE FUNDS

Adams county's commissioners have a financial stake in a court decision on the constitutionality of a state law setting up amounts members of institution district boards may receive as expenses.

When Public Law 1359 went into effect in 1949 stating the members of institution district boards in seventh class counties should receive $500 per year for expenses during the two-year period ending June 30, the commissioners accepted the money as provided by law.

Now with the state Superior court scheduled to determine whether or not the law is constitutional, the commissioners have entered into an agreement with the county auditors which will provide for each of them to return $833.32 to the county if the law is decided unconstitutional.

"Morally Obligated"

The commissioners, who are also the members of the institution board, decided to set up the agreement to pay the county treasurer the full sum despite the fact that legally they probably would not have to return the expense money they received in 1949.

All three of the commissioners, Mervin H. Benner, Clark L. Peters and G. Ed. Taughinbaugh, said that they felt morally obligated to return the money. "Even though we received it under the law as it stood, we feel that if the law is found unconstitutional we should not have received it, and if the law is unconstitutional we want to give the money back to the county," Peters said for the board.

The commissioners received $250 under the law for the last half of 1949, $500 during 1950 and $833.32 for the first two months of 1951.

Ruled Out In Bradford

On March 1, the county auditors in making their check of laws concerning payments by the county treasurer, learned that a test case had been instituted in the Court of Common Pleas of Bradford county and that the Bradford court had handed down an opinion December 22, 1950, holding the law for payment of expense allowances to the institution district board members unconstitutional.

They also learned that the de-

FR. CUNNINGHAM SPEAKS FRIDAY AT ST. FRANCIS

"Forgiveness was the reason for Christ's life," the Rev. Fr. William M. Cunningham, S. J., said Friday afternoon during the Three Hours Agony Devotion held at St. Francis Xavier Catholic church from noon until 3 o'clock.

"Even His name signified forgiveness. For He was Jesus, the Savior. And what did He come to save? He came to save man from sin, and that means forgiveness."

"On the cross He spoke, 'Father forgive them for they know not what they do.' The Bible mentions his saying this but once, but I like to think that He must have said it over and over again, innumerable times, at each spasm of agony. He asks 'Father, forgive them' because He has already forgiven them."

Fr. Cunningham's eight discourses during the service were based on the Seven Last Words of Christ. He noted: "The tremendous love of God for man is shown by this which we observe today, the passion and death of Christ. It was ordained that Christ should die. All men are born into this world to live; Christ's whole life was based on His death. That is what He came into the world to do—to die that men might be saved."

"And he suffered all things for us. Even to temptation. And He was sorely tried on the cross when he was at His weakest. The crowd cried 'Come down off the cross and we shall believe you are the Christ.' But there Christ proved his Godliness. Had He come down off the cross as He had the power to do, all of His life would have been for nothing. The death was necessary for the salvation of man. It was the final act, the completion of His work."

Prayers and responsive reading during the three-hour devotion, attended by about 300 persons, were led by the Rev. Fr. Anthony P. Kane, pastor, and the Rev. Stanley Lauritis, assistant pastor of the church. Special music was provided by the school choir and congregation.

Dog Found By Cops Wore Wrong Collar

Borough police reported Friday that a dog killed on South Washington street was owned by Elliott Taylor, Gettysburg R. 3.

Friday afternoon Mrs. Taylor telephoned that her dog was home, "and very much alive." She said, however, that the dog had lost its collar some time ago.

Police said evidently someone had found the collar lost by the Taylor dog and put it on their own animal.

Easter Seal Sale Receipts $1,779.65

The Adams County Crippled Children's society has received $1,779.65 to date from its Easter Seal sales, according to Miss Elizabeth Evans, seal sale chairman, with more money still coming in from the Easter seals.

A total of 11,485 sheets of the seals were mailed to Adams counties at the start of the drive, which opened on February 25. The campaign will end officially on Easter Sunday, but Miss Evans said the committee will continue to welcome contributions from those who have not yet sent theirs in.

The American Mission

By Leighton C. Taylor

Since the beginning of time the belief has prevailed that God or Providence singles out an individual, nation, or people to fulfill particular missions at critical periods in the march of civilization.

A striking example, to mention only one, was Moses, the individual, and the Children of Israel, a people. Countless other examples in point could be cited, but I shall confine this story to what I am pleased to call — THE AMERICAN MISSION.

Here in America we have the one and only model Republic, and as such Republic we have a mission. The belief in our mission assumes that God, in his wisdom, called certain hardy souls from the old and tyrannical nations to a new world—to a world and environment where they and their descendants could develop and set up a free so-

Church Built in 1868

The original church was built in 1868. After its destruction more than a year ago, plans were immediately made to rebuild, using the old walls. The new church, which will be dedicated to the memory of Rev. E. L. Higbee, pastor from 1913 to 1942, was made possible through funds donated by churches within the synod. To the right of the church is a small Sunday school room and at the left the pastor's room.

A new organ of the electro-pneumatic type, with ten stops and chimes with 21 bells is located in the organ chamber with the console in the chancel. A new tower replaces the old steeple, and is of the Spanish Mission type, crested with a gold leaf cross and containing a 704-pound bell, which came from an abandoned church at Feagaville, Md.

Here And There News Collected At Random

The engineering project at Beard's Lot, near Fountaineau, referred to by the U. S. Corps of Engineers as Raven Rock and by others as Hay Knob, is a "top secret" to some of the brass in Washington who refuse to divulge the nature of the work.

The Sunshine Trail has been blocked off for several miles. Several hundred men are working on the diggings. Scores of pieces of heavy excavating equipment have been moved to the site and a million or more words have been written about it . . . but all are a matter of conjecture.

Columnists have called it an anti-rain project; uranium mine; copper mine; plutonium deposits; underground highway to Washington, and even a project to obscure the entire eastern sky in event of an invasion. Some have hinted that the smoke clouds that spread over a good portion of eastern America last summer during the Canadian forest fires came from this project. All bosh.

We talked with Colonel Robert P. Kline, Army Engineer in charge of the project, and he stated that he cannot reveal what the nature of the work is. He said, "I'm not talking. I can't tell you a thing."

Charles Kenneth Corbett, 21, formerly of Taneytown, was taken into custody at Bridgeport, Carroll county, Wednesday night by Maryland state troopers and is being held in connection with the fire which destroyed a warehouse belonging to the Reindollar company, Taneytown, and its contents on Saturday night, March 10.

An investigation conducted since the fire by Cpl. J. N. Simmons and Cpl. J. S. Poteet, of the Maryland state police, led to Corbett, the officers state. Cpl. Simmons says that Corbett has admitted starting the fire and that he did it because he wanted to see some excitement in Taneytown that night.

A charge of malicious burning of property has been laid against Corbett before Magistrate Vincent A. Tubman, Westminster, and Corbett has been committed to the Carroll county jail to await further action.

Corbett was questioned about two previous fires which occurred on the Reindollar property at Taneytown, one about a year ago and another which destroyed a lumber shed on July 25, last. He, however, claims that he had no connection with these two fires.

Jurors' Pay Boost Will Cost $2,000

Adams county can figure on spending about $2,000 a year more on its juries starting in 1952.

Governor John S. Fine has signed into law a bill providing for jurors to be paid $7 a day instead of $5 a day, and at the same time increased the mileage pay from home to court house from six to seven cents a mile, according to an Associated Press story from Harrisburg.

The increase will take effect January 1, 1952. Last year, according to the auditor's report, the county spent $4,638.14 on its juries. Had the juries been paid at the 1952 rate the amount would have been about $6,700.

TRINITY CHURCH IS CROWDED FOR UNION SERVICES

The Lancaster theologian spoke before the union Good Friday service in Trinity Evangelical and Reformed church here. The church auditorium was filled.

DR. TILBERG IS AUTHOR OF NEW BOOK ON PARK

The newest book on Gettysburg is the 52-page historical handbook just issued by the National Park Service under the title of "Gettysburg."

Bound in a three-color paper cover, the book, which was written by Dr. Frederick Tilberg, contains some 50 pictures and maps and a condensed story of the three-day battle here. Dr. Tilberg is national park historian here.

Pictures include a number of views of sections of the battlefield that were made soon after the conflict here while others show key points of the present national park. There are individual photos of many of the top commanders in both armies that fought here.

Dr. Tilberg opens the book with a discussion of the military situation as it was in the spring of 1863 and the plan of campaign of General Lee that led to the accidental meeting of the armies at Gettysburg. The next three sections cover events of the three days here. Another section is devoted to Lincoln and Gettysburg.

Five pages in the back of the book are devoted to an outline of a "self-guided" tour of the park with 14 points on the battlefield indicated as "stops." The first is McPherson's ridge and the last is Spangler's spring. A small map is used to indicate the route to be followed on the "self-guided" trip.

The fact that guides are available is stated and their hours and rates for the long and short trips are given.

The cover illustration is a sketch reproducing a section of the Cyclorama painting of the turning point of Pickett's Charge showing a Union artillery battery being rushed up to action at the Bloody Angle.

The book is being sold through the park service.

SEARCHERS SEE LIFE RAFTS OF MISSING PLANE

Shannon Airport, Ireland, March 24 (AP) — A search plane, hunting for a giant American Air Force transport which vanished with 53 men aboard, today reported sighting "quite a few" life-rafts bobbing on the cold waters of the Atlantic off Ireland.

The pilot of a B-29 specially equipped rescue plane said he saw a one-man raft about 450 miles west of the Irish coast.

About 15 miles south of the first sighted raft, the pilot said, he saw "quite a few" more one-man rafts close together.

Two U.S. military transport vessels, the General Muir and Golden Eagle, were steaming full speed toward the rafts.

The British submarine Thune reported it was 40 miles from the rafts.

A U.S. Skymaster and a B-17 equipped with life-rafts that could be dropped by parachute flew to the scene at dawn from the U.S. air rescue station here.

Others Are Available

Also ready to give aid if survivors are found among the wreckage or aboard rafts of the ill-fated C-124, the largest transport in regular use by the air force, were the liner Queen Mary, British weather ships and a coast guard cutter.

A spokesman at the Shannon rescue base said a superfort was circling the area where the wreckage and flares were sighted and was directing other craft to the scene.

The big transport — a Globemaster II — disappeared in fog and rain early yesterday on a flight from the United States to England. She carried a crew of five and 48 passengers, including Brig. Gen. Paul T. Cullen, deputy commander of the U.S. Second Air Force, headquarters at Shreveport, La., and four officers of the Strategic Air Command (SAC), headquarters at Omaha, Neb.

Was Well Equipped

The Globemaster was equipped with rafts, flares and other emergency gear. It took off yesterday from the Limestone, Me., air base and refueled at Gander, Nfld.

The plane—capable of carrying 220 troops with full field equipment—has a top speed of 250 miles an hour. A U.S. Air Force spokesman in Washington said the transport, which last reported its position 800 miles southwest of Ireland, had fuel for eight hours of flight when it vanished. It is a ship of the Second Strategic Support Squadron at Walker Air Base, N. M.

Marine Reservists' Release Is Planned

Washington, March 24 (AP) — The Marine Corps hopes to be the first of the fighting services to spell out a program for the release of reservists called to duty by fighting in Korea.

Marine sources said today the projected plan calls for the release of the first marine reservists this summer, and the return to civilian life of all reservists who so desire by the end of 1952. A small number of marines has been returned to this country from Korea under a combat service rotation plan.

The marines release schedule is so framed that it can be cancelled if world development demand.

The marines called all of their group troop reserve and many of their air reserves to active duty last summer. Present law limits their duty to 21 months, unless the secretary of the navy orders an extension under national emergency authority.

Marine sources interviewed said that as of this moment an extension of service for reservists is not planned.

Buenos Aires, March 24 (AP) — Congressional investigators continued their search of La Prensa's government-seized records today, as close-mouthed police still hunted for the independent paper's fugitive editor.

Police refused to discuss their search for Editor Alberto Gainza Paz, who has been declared a fugitive from justice since his arrest was ordered Wednesday on charges of contempt of congress. They even indicated they wouldn't announce it if an arrest was made.

Friends and relatives of the editor say they do not know where he is.

A joint congressional committee took over the $2,000,000 La Prensa plant for investigation after it was strikebound by pro-government unions. The paper often has been critical of President Juan D. Peron's regime.

The carriers have been granted eight increases in freight rates on a national basis since 1946.

Major Plunges To Death After Crash

Luke Air Force Base, Ariz., March 24 (AP) — One of the most decorated flyers in the nation's Air National Guard plunged to his death after a collision of two F-84 Thunderjet fighters here yesterday.

He is Major Robert E. Welch, 27, of Detroit, Mich.

The pilot of the other plane, Capt. Earl Hoag, Ann Arbor, Mich., nursed his craft back to the base for a crash landing. He was not injured.

The planes, in formation, were returning from a routine training flight when they collided. Welch's plane veered off and fell out of control. It crashed and burned west of nearby Litchfield Park.

Welch was operating officer of the 12th Pilot Training Group here. He was a World War II ace, having shot down 19 enemy planes in the European theater.

He received the Silver Star, Distinguished Flying Cross, Air Medal with 25 clusters, Unit Citation with three clusters, and the ETO-ribbon with four battle stars.

17 Saddle Horses Consumed In Blaze

Norristown, Pa., March 24 (AP) — Fire that destroyed a barn at Eagleville early today killed seventeen saddle horses owned by members of the Western Pioneer Riding club.

The barn is owned by the Second City troop of Philadelphia and rented to the riding club.

The blaze was discovered about midnight and spread so rapidly it was impossible to remove the horses. Firemen, who estimated damage at $35,000, said they had not determined the cause.

Francis Dewane, a volunteer fireman from Collegeville, was admitted to Montgomery hospital for treatment of an ankle injury suffered when he was struck by a truck at the fire.

New York, March 24 (AP) — Police reported three men, one of them armed, failed to gain entry today to the apartment of gambler Frank Costello, a witness this week at the Senate Crime committee hearing in New York.

Will Enlist 2,500 Iron Curtain Refugees

Washington, March 24 (AP) — The army instructed its command in Germany today to start enlisting up to 2,500 refugees from behind the iron curtain. This action is authorized by recently enacted legislation.

The army announcement said the aliens would be neither nationals of Germany or any country participating in the European Recovery plan nor of the North Atlantic Treaty organization. This, of course, leaves available only nations of countries now under Communist control.

Strike Threatens P-A World Airways

New York, March 24 (AP) — Pan American world airways faced a strike at midnight tonight by 150 port stewards unless a federal mediator succeeds in a last-minute settlement.

The CIO Transport Workers union says another 4,200 employees will not cross the stewards' picket lines in New York, Miami, Seattle, San Francisco and Brownsville, Texas.

The TWU seeks a cost-of-living wage increase of 16 cents an hour. The union said present wages range between $1.25 and $1.91 an hour.

Originally set for March 14, the strike deadline was put off 10 days by the union to give Mediator George McSwan a chance to negotiate a settlement.

Adams county Superintendent of Schools J. I was informed that the youngsters enjoyed the bus ride down through the mountains. As to inability to get to school, that situation is to be remedied with the improvement of the dirt road across the mountain within the near future."

RICKEY CLAIMS PIRATES HEAD FOR TOP SPOT

San Bernardino, Calif., March 24 (AP) — General Manager Branch Rickey says he hasn't seen a club like the Pittsburgh Pirates in spring training since his first club in 1912. "This club's got deportment and attitude and we're looking only one way—first place," comments Rickey.

In the Mahatma's opinion a last place club has to be adventurous and take chances with young fellows while pennant contenders don't.

"Right now the catching is the best thing I've seen," says Rickey. "Clyde McCullough has shown me he wants to be on this club when we win a pennant."

Briefly, the general manager summed up several players this way: Paul Pettit: "He is a much better pitcher than he has shown. He worries about his arm. But he's one of the boys who will help us get to the top. That's the kind we want around. He'll pitch until he's induced." (Pettit is slated to undergo a physical examination March 30).

Pitcher Bill Koski: "He isn't owned by the Pittsburgh club. But the way manager Bill Meyer and I feel now, we might purchase his contract and keep him with the Pirates. He's going to be a good pitcher in a couple of years."

Asked about the guy who quoted the 50-1 odds against the Pirates winning the pennant, Rickey replied: "He must have known about our pitching staff."

Training Camp Briefs

Praderon, Fla., Mar. 24 (AP)—The Philadelphia Athletics lost a 16 to 8 decision to the Boston Braves yesterday but not before Manager Jimmy Dykes got his first walking papers of the spring season from an umpire.

It happened in the ninth inning. Rookie Lou Limer of the A's smashed a hit to left center field. The ball was lost in tall grass. Umpire Dascoli said it was a ground rule double.

Out came Dykes on the double. He said rather vociferously that it should be at least a triple and maybe a home run. Dykes ranted and panted but Dascoli remained unmoved. Finally Dykes was moved—right out of the game.

Had Dykes won his argument the A's would have lost 16 to 9 instead of 16 to 8.

Miami, Fla., March 24 (AP)—Manager Eddie Sawyer of the National league champion Philadelphia Phillies is quite pleased with the work of two lefthanded pitchers.

The southpaws—Ken Johnson and Jocko Thompson—shutout the St. Louis Cardinals here last night with five hits. The Phillies won the game 1 to 0 on a double, single, error and walk with the bases loaded.

Sawyer is desperately looking for a pitcher or a couple of hurlers to help make up for the loss of last season's 17-pine winner, Curt Simbmons, who is in the army. Maybe Johnson and Thompson will do the trick.

Los Angeles, Calif., March 14 (AP)—One of the most improved ball players this spring is catcher Eddie Fitzgerald of the Pittsburgh Pirates. Fitzgerald, who spent last season with Indianapolis in the American Association, is hitting the ball hard and has delighted Manager Bill Meyer behind the plate.

San Francisco, March 24 (AP)—What the Cleveland Indians need above all is an experienced right handed relief pitcher.

That, anyhow, is the way Manager Al Lopez sizes up his ball club at this point. He is pretty well satisfied with Bob Lemon, Bob Feller, Early Wynn, Mike Garcia and Steve Gromek.

But when they start weakening on an off day, what do the Indians do? His relief pitchers this spring have been rookies and they have not done well.

St. Petersburg, Fla., March 24 (AP)—Stan Musial says he's never had a better spring season at bat. He got a double and two singles yesterday against the Philadelphia Phillies. Total hit production for the St. Louis Cardinals was five.

Lakeland, Fla., March 24 (AP)—Maybe Vic Wertz has found the secret to consistent long-ball hitting.

After two tremendous clouts by the Detroit Tiger outfielder in yesterday's batting drill, Manager Red Rolfe seemed of that belief.

Rolfe said slugger Vic "is doing what we've been trying to make him do for the last three years. He is stepping into the ball, taking a long follow-through on his swing, and pulling the ball into right field."

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

New York, March 24 (AP) — Bill Spivey, Kentucky's seven-foot center, gives credit to three players for his development as a basketball player. "Bill, just a thin, oversized kid with no qualifications except height and eagerness, was a freshman at Kentucky when the 1948 Olympic team gathered for practice at Lexington. Half the squad, you remember, was the Kentucky varsity of 'that year; the other half AAU stars, and Spivey had a chance to observe them in action. . . . It was Bob Kurland, another seven-footer, who taught him how to handle his height, Bill says. . . . Alex Groza provided the example of how to move around in the pivot position (Spivey still can't do it like Groza). Vince Boryla taught him the hook shot that is Spivey's most effective weapon. . . . Of course, that isn't giving due recognition to freshman coach Harry Lancaster, who lost almost as much weight as Spivey gained trying to mold the big kid into a ball player while boss Adolph Rupp was at the Olympics.

CONSOLATION ROUND
Bill (The Bull) Forester, a huge fullback, had been dealing out plenty of misery to his teammates in Southern Methodist's spring football drills. . . . Came time for the second intra-squad game, a shout went up from the "Red" squad as coach Rusty Russell read off the squad lists. . . . Publicist Les Jordan edged over to guard Joe Basquez and asked how come. . . . "We got Forester on our team," exulted Joe. . . . "Guess that means you'll win," Les commented. . . . "At least," replied Basquez, "it means we'll live."

SPORTSPOURRI
Look like Kentucky has landed Tom Gola, the Philadelphia high school basketball hotshot who, at last report, had been approached by 43 colleges. Story is that the kid's "defense" against bids was that he was interested in Kentucky and he finally got to mean it. . . . Another prey flash who has had the college scouts drooling, halfback Charlie Sowerby of Keene, N. H., high, apparently is ticketed for Holy Cross. . . . Capt. Walter Charlesworth, ex-Tigers scout now athletic officer at Chanute Field (Ill.) air base, reports Chanute has scheduled over 50 baseball games and has several fine minor leaguers to play them.

STATE MATMEN BECOME THREAT IN NCAA MEET

Bethlehem, Pa., March 24 (AP) — The State of Oklahoma is still favored to house the 1951 NCAA team wrestling champion but its chief contender in today's final two rounds is a definite surprise.

Oklahoma A. and M. led the field into the semi-final round with six qualifiers as the top rated Oklahoma Sooners virtually faded out of the team title fight. Another dark horse, Penn State, with four grapplers still in contention, figures to challenge the Aggies' bid for mat supremacy.

Defending champion Iowa State Teachers was left with only two men for today's competition after five of the tall corn state's boys went down to defeat in the quarterfinals. Colorado State, Ohio State and Wayneburg (Pa.) college each still have two men on the mats.

Michigan State, Rutgers, Navy, Lehigh, Yale, Colorado, University of California, Cornell of Iowa, Cornell University, Princeton and Columbia each have one spoiler ready to swap holds with the team honor seekers.

Both defending individual champions, Tony Gizon, 123, Waynesburg, and Keith Young, 147-pounder from Iowa State Teachers, battled into the semifinals. Young nearly fell victim to a major upset when he edged out Lehigh's John Mahoney on a 5 to 4 decision.

George Lewis of Waynesburg, who won the 130 pound title in 1948 and since has spent two years in the army, showed he hadn't forgotten any of his holds. Lewis defeated William Donecho of Springfield 10 to 1 and then walloped Philip Dugan of the University of Iowa, 10 to 4.

NCAA TOURNEY NOW NARROWED TO FOUR TEAMS

New York, March 24 (AP) — Kentucky and Illinois, rated two of the best teams in the country, clash tonight for the eastern NCAA basketball championship in a game that promises thrills galore.

Kentucky, rated No. 1 in the final Associated Press poll, is favored to win by six points, but the champions of the Big Ten were conceding nothing.

A crowd of more than 18,000 is expected to pack Madison Square Garden for the final New York collegiate doubleheader of the season. North Carolina State and St. John's of Brooklyn meet in the first game at 7:45 p.m. (EST) to determine third place in the eastern eliminations.

Meanwhile, at Kansas City, Oklahoma A&M and Kansas State will battle for the western title and the right to meet the eastern winner for the National Crown at Minneapolis on Tuesday. The Aggies and K-State reached the western final last night by beating Washington and Brigham Young, 61-57 and 64-54, respectively.

The majority of coaches who watched Kentucky and Illinois both explode in the closing minutes to rout St. John's and N. C. State in Thursday's eastern semi-finals, favor Kentucky.

But Adolph Rupp, the Kentucky coach, is a bit cautious. "Frankly, I'm worried," he said. "We'll have to play a lot better than we did against St. John's. Illinois looks mighty good and my boys are tired."

Firemen Periled By
Exploding Shells
Lancaster, Pa., March 24 (AP)—Exploding shotgun shells endangered 100 volunteer firemen fighting a stubborn blaze in an auto repair shop on Route 222, near Browns-town, 12 miles northeast of here.

The shop, a one-story frame structure, and three automobiles and painting equipment were destroyed last night. Fire Chief John A. Kitch estimated the loss at $25,000.

The shotgun shells, stored in boxes in the shop, caused intermittent explosions for nearly half an hour as flames swept the building. Firemen from seven communities fought the blaze.

Samuel Adams, Jr., who with his father owns and operates the shop, discovered the fire. Firemen were unable to discover the cause.

William E. Kapp sold to Sewell E. and Bessie E. Kapp, Biglerville, a property in Biglerville.

Executors of the will of Felix V. Topper, late of McSherrystown, sold to Felix V. Topper, Jr., two properties in McSherrystown.

California Leads In Crop Receipts

Washington, March 24 (AP) — California farmers had $2,160,440,000 in cash receipts from crop and livestock marketings last year to lead the nation, the Department of Agriculture reports.

Iowa trailed California by $102,339,000. The Hawkeye farmers' cash receipts were $2,058,101,000.

These were the only states whose farm marketings totaled more than two billion dollars.

This is the third straight year that California has set the pace and the seventh time in the last decade. Iowa led in 1941, 1942 and 1947.

Final 1950 figures show there was an average decrease over the country of one per cent in receipts from farm marketings.

Pennsylvania ranked 14th among the states in farm income. It has $730,933,000 for 1950 compared with $768,348,000 in 1949.

New Jersey income totaled $279,799,000 in 1950 and $292,420,000 in 1949.

DAD FLIES TO SON IN KOREA

New York, March 24 (AP) — Because the army "has a heart," a father will have a far east reunion with his son, a young paratrooper sergeant in Korea.

The father, 52-year-old Robert Strasser of New York, left by plane Wednesday for Tokyo or Korea where he is expected to arrive today to see his son, Theodore, 23.

The son, an only child, was drafted out of high school in 1945. About three years ago he re-enlisted as a paratrooper and never got home on furlough.

Anxious to see his boy, Strasser bombarded army brass, senators and congressmen with letters and phone calls. He even wrote a letter to Gen. Douglas MacArthur.

Pays Own Expense
His query was always the same: "How about letting me go out there to see my boy?"

Strasser, sales manager for a precious metals firm, says he doesn't know exactly how it happened — but he was called to Washington recently and told he could go to the far east at his own expense.

He quoted authorities as saying his trip would be under army jurisdiction, with the place and duration of the reunion in the hands of military commanders in the area.

It would be nice, he said, if he could meet Theodore in Tokyo so his son could get a break in the fighting. But, he added, "if necessary, I'll go to the 38th parallel to meet him."

Today's Talk

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS
HUMAN UNDERSTANDING

Some twenty years ago I wrote one of these talks about Great-Hearts. I wish again to tell of a few of the illustrations used in that Talk. In Elkhart, Indiana, there was a mail carrier who picked up a friendly little squirrel. He crawled up his sleeve and then perched upon his cap. There he stayed until the route was over. Then the mail carrier took it to his post office—and he even invited it out to lunch with him!

I once noted a champion boxer about to enter his training quarters. He noted a small boy peering through the fence, awaiting the boxer's entrance. Noting the small boy, he went up to him, patted him on his head and invited him in as his guest to watch him in his training. I shall never forget the smile of pride on the face of the small urchin.

My friend J. N. (Ding) Darling once told me of a time when he and ex-President Hoover were fishing, when someone came and told of a family nearby where a child was ill. The former President grabbed his hat and they rushed to the home. There they found one child dead from starvation and several others in a serious condition. Mr. Hoover raised over $3,000 at once, sent the children to a hospital, and asked if more aid was needed to let him know.

I often listened to the beautiful tenor voice of the late John McCormack, the great Irish star. How he loved to sing, and how he loved to please his listeners! One time when he sang over the radio he announced he was to sing a selection, "Little Boy Blue," and that he was doing so at the request of two persons—one aged 3 and one aged 6!

I have that human publication "Theodore Roosevelt's Letters to His Children." He wrote in the most intimate and interesting manner, drawing little sketches here and there to enliven the interest of his children. According to the age of each, he wrote—and charmingly. Few men in public life ever excelled his kindly, human traits.

I once read that Eugene Field was late to his wedding because he stopped to play marbles with a group of boys on his way!

Just Folks

LIFE AT THREE
Now he scampers round the place;

Never slows a single step.
Walking's much too slow a pace;
As they say it: "Full of pep!"
"Careful!" mother softly calls.
That it seems he cannot be.
"Picks-daisies," when he falls.
Life's like that when you are three.

Doesn't say it, but it's plain
When there's so much to be done
Who would all the pleasure gain
From the daytime, has to run.
Watching him I've often guessed
Surely this his thought must be:

"It's a waste of time to rest!"
Life's like that when you are three.

Keep up with him? No, not I.
If I could, 'twas long ago.
Foolish now I'd be to try
Such vitality to show
Round the place he goes pell-mell.

Never out of breath is he.
Every hour exciting! Well,
Life's like that when you are three.

JEFFERS SAYS
PRESIDENT IS POURING MONEY
DOWN RATHOLES

Washington, March 23 (AP)—William M. Jeffers, World War II boss of the Federal Rubber program, says President Truman is pouring the taxpayers' money "down a hundred rat holes" and has lost the people's confidence.

"Any thinking man knows we cannot look to the President for constructive leadership," Jeffers declared in a letter to Vice President Barkley.

"He is still operating on the old principle of 'tax and tax, spend and spend, elect and elect!' That policy was bad enough before this country was debt-ridden, but this country now is in a serious financial condition."

Loss Confidence
"On top of that, the people have lost confidence in the President, which is not going to help."

Jeffers, retired president of the Union Pacific railroad, wrote Barkley to urge that the Senate do something to "get better principles in American government than taxing, spending and electing." Barkley is the Senate's presiding officer.

The vice president's office said Jeffers' letter had been received but that Barkley had not seen it yet. It was dated March 16 and was mailed from Jeffers' home in Pasadena, Calif. Copies went to each member of the Senate.

March 16 was the day after the deadline for millions of Americans to chuck out billions of dollars in income taxes to Uncle Sam.

"A couple of years ago I retired after working for 55 years and, of course, I expected to enjoy some comfort in retirement," Jeffers told Barkley.

Pension For Taxes
"However, I find that about half of my pension is going for taxes and, mind you, this is just for Federal taxes and does not include the numerous other taxes I am required to pay."

"So, instead of enjoying my retirement, I am confronted with a battle on my hands to get enough together to even make a living."

"If these taxes were necessary for the welfare of this country I wouldn't begrudge a cent of it, but when I see my hard-earned money (and make no mistake about it, I earned it the hard way), and that of millions of good Americans being thrown down a hundred rat holes, then I rebel. It's time to stop!"

Welfare Above Politics
Jeffers said the welfare of the country "must be put ahead of politics" and added that Barkley and the Senate "are confronted with a decision in that regard right now."

Then he said:
"The 1950 annual expenditures were around $40 billion. Now the President proposes to spend almost $92 billion in 1951 and almost $100 billion in 1952. Do you honestly think taxes can carry this load? Where is the tax money coming from? ..."

"Why should the President worry about his personal taxes when the rest of us taxpayers pay his living expenses, entertainment expenses, maintain his home and grounds, provide him with a fleet of automobiles and chauffeur for himself and his family, staff a private yacht and an airplane for his numerous vacation trips?"

"Don't you think the tax has arrived for you fellows who are elected by the taxpayers to take this matter in hand and really do something about it for the benefit of the country as a whole and for your own constituents?"

Jeffers told Barkley "You won't have any trouble finding plenty of men who are able and willing, when the showdown comes, to forget politics and get this country back on a level keel."

Time For Cities To Blast Underworld

Washington, March 24 (AP)—Chairman Kefauver (D-Tenn.) of the Senate Crime Committee said today the time has come for American cities to clean out their own unsavory underworlds without congressional help.

Despite mounting pressure for the committee to extend its investigation beyond the scheduled March 31 deadline, Kefauver steadfastly refused to go along with the idea.

"We don't want to get into the position where the people are depending on congressional committees to ferret out the details of crime in their communities," he told reporters. "This is the appropriate time to stop."

He said reaction to the investigation has demonstrated the people are determined to do something about crime in their communities, and "I think they should be given a chance to do it. Local communities should not depend on congressional committees."

Sometimes there's only one mistake between careless and being careless.

Giving A Good Account

Having just completed a feature magazine article on the subject of ignition timing I find myself at a loss to understand how all these neglected cars keep running so well in heavy traffic and out there in that rat race which represents our modern conception of touring. So many little things can happen to the ignition system to put it completely out of order, and unless there is periodic inspection of such things as the breaker point gap, effectiveness of the spark advance mechanism and condition of the voltage and current regulator, there's certain to be trouble. Yet just watch those cars whizzing by.

Only conclusion I can draw is that cars may be getting a lot better service these days than anyone suspects. If the distributor cam isn't given a touch of vaseline the rubbing block of the breaker arm will wear, bring the points closer together, retarding the spark and encouraging overheating. Yet on a 100 mile run the other day I saw only seven cars tied up because of hot motors.

Well Worth Considering

High oil consumption that cannot be accounted for in any other way may be due to wear on the valve guides. There is special packing for checking oil loss at these points.

The best braking is always done in a straight line, bumper being more effective in absorbing collision shock than either of the front fenders.

Motorists who have just begun reading this column may be surprised to know that it is now celebrating its 25th year of continuous operation. Actually it doesn't seem like 9,125 days of commenting on the motor scene, but when we look back to 1926 we find we have come a long way. There was a motor-meter on the top of the radiator, four wheel mechanical brakes were just coming into the picture, step plates for the running board were quite a popular accessory, and lacquer finish was just coming in.

Gone from the picture since that date are Ajax, Apperson, Case, Chandler, Cleveland, Cunningham, Davis, Diana, Duesenberg, duPont, Durant, Elcar, Essex, Flint, Franklin, Gardner, Gray, Hupmobile, Jewett, Jordan, Kissel, Lexington, Locomobile, McFarlan, Marmon, Moon, Oakland, Paige, Peerless, Pierce-Arrow, Reo (passenger car), Rickenbacker, Star, Stearns Knight, Stutz, Velie, Wills Saint Claire, and Willys Knight.

Mechanic Joe Speaking

"One of the things I learned years ago is never to sit down and stew over failure to find the cause of a car ailment, or to cope with a difficult situation. My experience has taught me that the trick is to go on to something else, and in nine cases out of ten a solution to the original problem will come to mind."

"It is a rule which business men use, and I understand that the smartest inventors make good use of the idea. Some of them even go to sleep and drop the problem into their sub-conscious mind for solution. Something about your activity when going on to a new problem will stimulate your mind and give you a fresh viewpoint on the original puzzle."

Where The Sludge Lies

Anyone who remembers that a rolling stone gathers no moss will understand why it is that sludge forms most readily around the valve compartment of a car's motor. Here it is that the oil flows slowly and thus gets into trouble. Where oil moves speedily it stays in better condition and doesn't have time to get thickened from a combination of diluent, abrasive, gasoline, carbon and plain dirt. Sludge removers will, of course, stir up the muck in these pocket areas, but it's risky. Before sludge remover is used in an engine, or any of the additives to check valve and piston ring stickage, remove the valve cover plates to see how much sludge is present. If excessive, remove it manually, and also have the engine oil pan taken down for a manual cleaning. Remove the cartridge of the oil filter and clean out the sludge in the bottom of the filter's shell. Then follow with the sludge remover.

Just to set the record straight your new car should be waxed immediately. It doesn't make any difference what make of car you drive or whether the finish is lacquer, synthetic enamel, metallic or varnished (as for a station wagon) wax can be used immediately. Sometimes finishes pick up dirt and abrasives during shipment, and in such cases a light cleaning and polishing should precede the waxing. Early waxing also applies to old cars that have just been refinished. It is not necessary to wait for the finish to "set." You'll hear quite a lot to the contrary, but the leading makers of wax preservatives for cars will back me up.

Around The Motor Map

Service men have been reporting much trouble around the too ambitious folk who still clean carbon and grind valves, there being too many cases where the wrong cylinder head gasket is used. ... Believe it or let it pass with the scenery, Detroit has reached the point where it can produce a car every three seconds of the working week. ... Phoney parts are still plentiful, but they have the common characteristic of working only for a limited time.

Only a few owners of convertibles know what service is needed on the top lowering mechanism. ... There's growing interest in the five-ply passenger car tire as a good compromise between comfort and safety.

Whoever warned that the little things in motoring are what make the difference certainly had a lot of experience with automobiles. I was thinking of this when watching them quick charge a battery at one of the service stations. The owner, they explained, had been running into bad luck. He ran the battery down twice because of starting trouble. Then he bought a new battery and assumed his troubles were over, but a careless member of the family let the door of the glove compartment remain open all night. The light there was just enough of a drain to put the new battery on the sick list.

Speaking of light bulbs, if you happen to have trouble with flickering it would be smart to consider the possibility that the particular bulb doesn't fit tightly in its socket. There is just enough difference in bulbs to cause this. I had such trouble with the tonneau light. Squeezing the socket a little didn't help, and, of course the natural assumption was that there was trouble with the door stop switch. But a new bulb did the trick.

Q. The engine of my car has developed an odd case of overheating. Doesn't seem to be any trouble with the cooling system and the chassis is in excellent shape, including the clutch. Have checked the timing and carburetion.—H. F. S.

A. I'd be suspicious of the automatic mechanical advance in the distributor. The governor shaft may be binding. Try a few drops of light oil on it.

Q. Wax seems to be oozing from the ignition coil on my car, but the engine still is running normally. Should I replace the coil immediately?—Wm. B. V.

A. The coil may have been heated at some time, but this oozing is no sign of its breakdown.

Q. Twice within a period of a year the connecting bearings rod and the center main bearing of my car's motor have gone bad. There wasn't any evidence of overheating from lack of oil, and the shaft isn't sprung. We're puzzled. It's mighty expensive.

—T. H. Jr.

A. I think you will find that the crankshaft is too light and that it whips at higher speeds, thus slowly wearing out the bearings.

Q. Is there any risk in not having much free pedal travel I have always been concerned about making sure that there is plenty of margin of pedal travel when the brakes are applied, but a friend tells me there's the other angle to be considered, too.

—L. MCB.

A. If there isn't sufficient pedal travel it may cause blocking of the master cylinder by-pass port, thus preventing the brakes from releasing.

Q. I continue to get poor low speed performance from my car. There is always some evidence of missing and bucking, yet everything seems to check all right.—H. W. Q.

A. This looks to me like a case of too advanced spark.

Q. Is it possible to change the tension on the spring of a distributor's breaker arm? I think the tension is excessive because there's evidence that the points are bouncing at road speed.—C. M.

A. You can decrease it by pinching the spring carefully. I'd prefer to install a new spring and arm.

Q.—Is it easier for the plugs to throw a spark if compression is higher?—D. N. B.

A. Plugs throw a spark more easily when compression is low. You'll note how fat a spark is thrown when a plug is fired outside the engine. This is one reason why good ignition is so important with modern motors.

Prize eggs will be given. In case of rain on Sunday, the hunt will be held the first nice evening next week, at 5 o'clock.

District Commander Walter Metz, Chambersburg, was present at the Thursday evening meeting. Mr. Metz spoke to the group about the activities of the local post. It was announced that the war veterans' memorial is expected to arrive by May 1. The memorial is being sponsored by the Legion, Mason and Dixon Memorial Post No. 6954 Veterans of Foreign Wars and the Richard M. Palmer No. 303 Military Order of the Purple Heart. The memorial will be in honor of all the local war veterans, and will be erected on the plot of ground adjoining the Littlestown State bank building, where the World War II honor roll stood. The dedication of the monument will take place at the Memorial Day services. The next meeting of the Legion will be held Thursday evening, April 12, at the post home.

A Conewago Deaneary Youth party will be held Tuesday evening from 8 to 11 o'clock, at Delone Catholic high school, McSherrystown, sponsored by St. Joseph's Parish Council of Catholic Women, Bonneauville. FACTS FOR LETTUCE GROWERS

Many home gardeners learn to their sorrow that high quality head lettuce is not an easy crop to grow. When they write the editor for advice they invariably blame themselves for the failure. For all who have encountered such trouble in the past, as well as those likely to meet the same ome in the future, the following practical facts about lettuce growing in the home garden are offered:

Lettuce of all varieties is a cool-weather crop. Particularly is not weather trying on heading varieties. Therefore, it should be grown mainly as early and late crops, with the weeks of hot midsummer bridged as hereafter suggested.

Leaf varieties of lettuce contain more vitamins than do the heading kinds because the exposed, open leaves gain more benefits from direct sunshine. In fact, if gardeners will consider the dietary advantages of leaf lettuce over head lettuce, plus its greater ease of culture, they will likely plant to have beds in tender production from early March until late December. That gardeners farther north grow lettuce for family use every month in the year is good evidence that the task is both easy and practical. Most leafing varieties reach edible size in 40 to 50 days after seeding.

To those harder souls who desire to grow head lettuce, the editor suggests that seed be sown in a sunny window box or hotbed before March 20, this week if possible, and the tiny plants shifted to individual pots, plant bands or small berry baskets in a sunny coldframe. They should be gradually hardened off by judicious ventilation before they are transplanted to their growing place in late April. The main idea in growing head lettuce is to bring the heads to edible size before extremely hot weather arrives in early July. From 75 to 90 days from the date of sowing seed should be allowed for most varieties. Of course, transplanting must be done without disturbing the roots.

In addition, as a form of lettuce insurance, it is a splendid idea to have a bed of leaf lettuce coming into production to supplement as well as to precede the heading crop. Leaf lettuce may be sown in a coldframe in late January, under muslin cover by the middle to latter part of February, and in the open after March 1. Neither leaf or head lettuce is injured by light frosts or by temperatures that may drop occasionally below freezing.

All lettuce demands a mellow, fertile, well drained loam. Experience and experiments both demonstrate that the crop prefers a soil near neutrality or slightly alkaline, although actual tests with heading sorts show a pH value just slightly on the acid side is better. Home gardeners may be satisfied with a mildly alkaline reaction.

A 6-8-6 fertilizer is beneficial where the loam is naturally fertile and where well rotted, pulverized manure has been worked into the loam. When growth is slow, heading varieties may be side dressed with nitrate of soda and beds of leafing lettuce fed with the same stimulant by dissolving it in water at the rate of 1 pound to 30 gallons and administering the water among the plants with a long-spouted watering can so the leaves are not wet by the solution. Too much nitrogen may cause heading sorts to bolt—develop seed stalks—prematurely.

To bridge hot midsummer it is advisable to sow leaf lettuce in a somewhat sheltered area every three weeks from early June until mid-August.

WHY NOT GROW NUTS?

Is it possible to bud and graft black walnut trees? How should such nut trees as black walnut and hickory not be started, by planting nuts or by buying and setting out nursery stock? Is the Chinese chestnut similar in quality to the native American chestnut that was exterminated by blight? These and numerous other related questions come to the editor's desk in the course of a year. To answer them in general and to offer timely help on the subject of nut culture, the following practical suggestions are given:

If grown solely for their nuts, black walnut trees should be grown from improved (budded) stock purchased from a reputable nursery. Late fall or early March is a safe planting date, preferably within the first three weeks of March. But where black walnut trees are started for future timber production, with nut crops secondary, trees may be economically started by planting nuts in late November or early Spring. On this point it is well to remember that a tree passes on both timber characteristics and nut quality in the planted nut. Therefore, it is indeed a wise precaution to select nuts from trees with these desirable traits.

Persons who wish to experiment with budding (the best way to multiply improved varieties), should buy and plant at least a few guaranteed nursery budded trees and from these in the future take buds to be used on seedlings started from nuts of native varieties. For the inexperienced it is pertinent to explain that a bud from an improved tree set on the stock of an ordinary seedling will reproduce the improved characteristics. This is the method by which budded trees are grown in nurseries.

Shellback or shagbark hickory trees are not widely grown, yet they bear nuts of excellent quality for home use and demanding a wide popularity in urban markets. Too, the strong, close-grained timber ranks first among woods for tool handles and in numerous other exacting roles. Hickory trees do best in a sheltered nook where the soil is well drained and fertile. For timber alone they should be grown quite close together; for nuts they should have liberal spacing to promote the formation of lower and rounder tops.

The Chinese or Oriental chestnut is the large nut sold in many stores. Few persons who remember the texture and goodness of the native chestnut will agree that the imported chestnut is as tasty and tender. But since blight killed off the native tree, Oriental chestnuts have proved the only species capable of survival. And by way of information to readers interested in the editor's discovery of a native tree still immune to the blight, the tree bore an excellent crop of nuts last year and the editor has several young trees started from them.

The filbert, better known as hazelnut, should be included among worthwhile nuts to grow for home use and sale. Here again nursery plants should be set out as early in March as soil and weather conditions permit.

Yes, English walnut and pecan trees can be grown successfully in this latitude, although commercial culture centers farther south. In a sheltered location English walnut trees will bear well. Pecan trees are somewhat hardier. Both should be grown on a small scale to round out a well planned program of nuts for home use and local sale.

NOTES ON RAISING DUCKLINGS

In most county seat towns and larger cities within trucking distance of farms in this region there are undeveloped markets for ducklings sold at ages of 8 to 12 weeks. Of course, no person should leap into this industry with get-rich-quick ideas without first locating tentative outlets for his production. But experience indicates that consumer demands are not difficult to stimulate through chain and independent stores, hotels and restaurants, and even in homes. When investigating potential marketing channels it is advisable to learn the bird age and weight prospective consumers prefer. It is rarely wise for beginners with ducklings to hatch eggs at home, either by bird or incubator. Buying day-old ducklings from a reputable hatchery is recommended, especially until more experience is gained in handling the birds.

An ordinary chick brooder house and equipment will serve for ducklings. Fencing the birds into lots of no more than 100, with pens measuring about 4 by 10 feet, is recommended. The hover temperature should be kept near 95 degrees F. the first week, lowered gradually to 85 degrees during the second week, 80 the third week, and 70 to 75 degrees later. Of course, recommended temperatures vary with houses and outdoor weather conditions. In general the birds should be slowly acclimated to outdoor environments within three to four weeks.

If pens are comfortably bedded with fine dry straw and errant members watched to prevent their straying far from the hover, they will soon learn to run to the heat when they get chilly. Water should be supplied in sanitary fountains so the birds will not wet their bedding.

Feeding methods are similar to those advised for chicks. Most duck raisers do not feed ducklings until they are 48 hours old. Then they feed them five times a day for the first five days, all the moistened mash they will clean up at an offering. After the first week feedings are reduced to four a day, later reduced to three a day until the birds are marketed.

One of the most satisfactory mashes is composed of (by weight) 2 parts bran, 1 part yellow corn meal, one-half part middlings, with rolled oats added at the rate of 10 pounds to 100 pounds of mash, also 3 pounds of dry sard. Mash should be moistened with milk just before feeding. If they are voracious, add two hard-boiled (infertile) duck eggs finely chopped to each quart of mash for the first five days. These may be obtained from the hatchery in many cases. Thereafter substitute sifted meat scrap at the rate of 3 pounds to 100 pounds of mash, increasing it to 10 pounds when ducklings are two weeks old and to 15 pounds at the beginning of the fourth week. Too, increase the corn meal to two parts beginning the fifth week.

If the birds do not have access to grass, add finely chopped green feed to the mash after the fifth week, such as lettuce, clover or alfalfa clippings or tender grass tops.

In the absence of direct sunshine cod-liver oil should be included in the mash at the rate of 2 pounds to 100 pounds of mash. Omit this two weeks before marketing time in order to avoid off-flavored meat.

Ducklings relish a pool of clean, running water after they are 6 1/2 weeks old. Marketing is advisable when they are 8 to 12 weeks old.

VET POLICEMAN
TAKES OWN LIFE

Philadelphia, March 24 (P) — A veteran police sergeant with 25 years service shot and killed himself yesterday at a downtown entrance to the Broad street subway.

Frank D. Allabaugh, 47, left a note for his wife, which police said read: "False reports have forced me to do this. I love you Tilly. (signed) Frank."

Allabaugh was attached to the city hall cellroom complement which has figured in recent investigations. Allabaugh's suicide came about 48 hours after Assistant District Attorney Americo V. Cortese announced the cellroom personnel would be questioned.

Cortese said he sought information with regard to the widespread use of blank copies of the charge to "spring" racketeers and gamblers within minutes of their arrest.

Detective Inspector Richard Doyle said the investigation so far had turned nothing up implicating Allabaugh. Doyle said the policeman was scheduled to be questioned yesterday.

PENTAGON'S BIG BRASS MAKES TRIPS TO HILL

By JAMES MARLOW
Washington, March 24 (AP)—The Pentagon's big brass have to take a lot of time out from their actual defense work to talk about it to Congress.

It's a necessary task since Congress, which makes the laws to back defense, wants to know first hand from the brass what their plans are and why.

Sometimes Congress may overdo the demands it makes on the time of the Pentagon chiefs. But that's one of those things. Secretary of Defense Marshall has had to make the trip to the capitol at least 10 times since taking office last September.

Faced 'Em Six Times
But Mrs. Anna Rosenberg, assistant secretary, is the one who has spent far and away the most time on the hill. But her case is extraordinary.

Before she ever was able to take office she was accused of being a Communist. That charge had to be examined. It turned out to be ridiculous. But she had to face the lawmakers six times to brand the charge a lie, confront her accuser, and clear her name.

Then soon after becoming assistant secretary, with the job of working out a manpower program, she had to start dashing up to the capitol. She's made 13 trips, plus the six on the communism charge.

There's no record of the times she was called up for informal discussions with members of Congress.

These other very important people have had to make their visit, too: General Omar Bradley, chairman of the joint chiefs of staff; General J. Lawton Collins, chief of staff of the army; Admiral Forrest Sherman, chief of naval operations; General Hoyt S. Vandenberg, chief of the air force; and assistant secretaries in the Department of Defense.

But when any of these people face the lawmakers they're not alone. They have to bring staffs with them to fill them in on some detail or answer a specific question of a member of Congress.

Proves Truth Of Old Adage On Eggs

Newark, N. J., March 24 (AP)—Mrs. Violet Kline of South Orange put all her eggs in one basket—and regretted it.

She packed $12,000 in cash and jewelry into her pocketbook because, she told police yesterday, she was expecting painters and didn't want to leave the valuables in the house.

When she got to her Newark business office, she said, she placed the laden pocketbook on top of a filing cabinet from where it was snatched by a sneak thief.

GET MESSAGES FROM PRISONERS

Denver, March 24 (AP)—An Easter eve message of hope is on its way to 23 families who believe their sons are prisoners of war.

Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Wegner of Englewood, a Denver suburb, yesterday received from someplace in North Korea an envelope containing 23 letters for families of the prisoners, most of them marines. The Wegners themselves had no letter. But they think the envelope was addressed in their son's handwriting.

The Wegners figure that a few envelopes were handed out to prisoners and their letters picked up and jammed in carelessly. They hope some other family has a letter from their son, Richard, 21.

The Wegners last got a letter from their son, a marine corporal, two days after he was reported missing in action last December.

A similarity in the 23 letters indicated that the Chinese suggested what was to be written. All referred to "the Chinese volunteer army." All emphasized that eating was "as well as could be expected under the circumstances." They said they had a fine Christmas. And all were being "educated."

The Wegners are forwarding the letters.

SEEK RECORD ON NEW TEST WELL

Harrisburg, March 24 (AP)—A test well which may end up being Pennsylvania's deepest in history is being drilled on a farm in Lycoming county.

The well is going down at Oval, seven miles south of Jersey Shore. It is situated in the base of a deep cavity in the earth. For that reason it had a head start on its bid for a record depth.

So far drillers—hoping to strike natural gas—have reached a depth of 4,290 feet. The record in Pennsylvania is 10,312, reached by drillers in Fayette county two years ago. That well was dug by the Manufacturers Light and Heat company and is yielding natural gas.

The well at Oval is the latest attempt to search for an extension of the Leidy township gas field some 40 miles west of Clinton county. It is being drilled by the California company, a subsidiary of California Standard Oil company.

State Geologist S. H. Cathcart said because the well is going down in a deep cavity it is starting in a lower strata level than any other well in the state.

Cathcart explained: "This well was started at a point about 10,000 or 12,000 feet lower than wells could be started in such areas as the bituminous regions of western Pennsylvania." And Cathcart isn't even sure what the new well will find. There is no real evidence of either oil or natural gas in the immediate area.

York Springs

York Springs—Mrs. Ethel Smith was hostess at her home early this week to the Willing Workers society of the local Lutheran church.

Mrs. Parvin Bower is recuperating after the recent operation performed upon her at the University of Pennsylvania hospital, Philadelphia, to correct a condition which has been impairing her vision for some time.

The Rev. Donald G. Roemer, pastor of the local Church of God, accompanied by his wife and by Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Coulson, were among those who recently attended a Lenten portrayal of the Passion Play at Harrisburg.

Tommy, son of Prof. and Mrs. Dale Roth, is recuperating after recent treatment for a severe cut on his head sustained in a fall about two weeks ago.

As part of the Holy Week observance of the local Church of God of which the Rev. Donald G. Roemer is pastor, was the Communion and Feet Washing Service on the evening of Holy Thursday. In preparation for this rite, there was a Preparatory Service at the church the previous evening.

George Deatrick, formerly of here is remaining at the home of a daughter, Mrs. H. Kegerreis, near Harrisburg, for an indefinite time.

The Rev. Norman L. Bortner, pastor of the local Lutheran church, announced that the quarterly communion service will be combined with the confirmation service of new members into the church, and the rites will take place at 11 a.m. Easter Sunday.

York, on Thursday evening, April 19. Men wishing to be included are asked to contact any officer of the local Holy Name society.

The American Mission

By Leighton C. Taylor

philosophers, editors, all have stated and restated their belief in our unique responsibility for the establishment and defense of human freedom.

Now, at a time when Americans are becoming especially self-conscious of their obligations to other nations the idea of America's Mission invokes our renewed attention.

Nursery Of Mission

Massachusetts Bay Colony was the nursery of The American Mission. John Winthrop, the first Governor of the Colony, and his followers looked upon themselves as latter-day Israelites, never doubting that God had brought them across the sea for a purpose higher than their own well-being. They sincerely believed in their mission; that America was called, as declared by Jonathan Edwards, the notable Congregational Minister of the period, to be the glorious renovator of the world.

Toward the end of the 17th century the American Mission began to take widespread root. Ministers from the pulpit were calling attention to what God had done for the colonies; that for the first time He had made it possible for a people to govern themselves.

That America had a mission to set men free was the firm conviction of our Founding Fathers. Franklin believed it; Tom Paine believed it. John Adams believed it, declaring that the mission had been divinely appointed, and that its controlling idea was, by example, to advertise liberty to all nations. He believed, with his contemporaries, that the defeat of the colonies would mean the defeat of liberty everywhere. He and his associates looked upon God as the source of their freedom, and were not ashamed to admit it.

Model For Others

With the adoption of the constitution America's mission came to flower and got its greatest impetus. Washington, particularly, was conscious of the mission, proclaiming that we were formulating a plan which, in its operation, would decide forever the fate of government by the governed. In his inaugural he voiced the conviction that we held in our hands the destiny of free people. In his farewell address he expressed the hope that our Constitution would so work that it would recommend itself for adoption by every nation as yet a stranger to it.

Jefferson and the Jeffersonians were, if anything, even stouter believers in the high destiny of the infant republic. Jefferson never wearied of saying that America had a clear responsibility for the promotion of liberty; that we had a mission to act, not only for ourselves, but by example for all mankind. So obsessed was he with the mission idea that he wanted the Great Seal of the United States to picture the Children of Israel in the Wilderness, led by a cloud by day and a pillar of fire by night.

Blessings From Providence

Thoughtful men in succession regarded the American mission as an influential, ideological force — a model Republic of free men.

Andrew Jackson, (Old Hickory), believed in it. He reminded his fellow country men, while in public life and in retirement, that Providence had showered on this favored land blessings without number; that God had chosen America to be the guardian of freedom, and that our responsibility was to preserve it for the benefit of the human race.

The philosopher and the poet joined statesmen in proclaiming their belief in America's destiny. Said Emerson, the office of America is to liberate.

Coming to our Civil War, Lincoln said he considered the central idea pervading that terrible struggle was the necessity of proving that popular government was not an absurdity. He reminded Congress, with America's mission in mind, that it was not alone the union, but the last best hope of earth that we would nobly save or meanly lose.

And, finally, at Gettysburg, he made it clear that the honored dead resting here had fought so that government of the people, by the people, for the people, should not perish from the earth.

ment of the people, by the people, for the people, should not perish from the earth.

Wilson Stressed Mission

Woodrow Wilson, the greatest visionary and idealist ever to occupy the White House, was next to emphasize America's mission. He told the American people that this nation had always been destined to lead mankind in the assertion of people's rights; that it was destined to set a responsible example of free government to all the world, and to prove that democracy was worth the saving.

It must be admitted that within recent years, particularly within the last decade or two, the mission idea has lost much of its appeal. The reasons therefor are many. In a materialistic, cruel, selfish world the force of good example is not enough. Moreover, we have failed to set the kind of example advocated by our founding fathers, and this failure has caused other nations to misinterpret our Good Samaritan benefactions.

They know that we do not come to them with clean hands. They know about our economic injustices, our racial discriminations, our slums, and the deterioration of our moral and spiritual forces. They know about the existence with us of organized crime; about our crowded divorce and criminal court dockets, and of our 400,000 divorces annually.

Cites Terrifying Report

They hear of our constantly increasing juvenile delinquency, and of the marked dissolution of the once ideal American home, such dissolution being largely responsible for these deplorable conditions.

J. Edgar Hoover tells us in a late report that 15,000,000 copies of sex magazines are printed monthly in the United States, and are read by one-third of the American people; that there are more barmaids in this country than college girls; that 100,000 young women join the ranks of the illicit annually, and that 1,000,000 illegitimate babies are born each year. He states further that we have three times as many criminals as college students; that a major crime is committed every 20 seconds, a murder every 40 minutes, and 60 suicides every 24 hours. This is a horrifying picture, indeed. These terrible things, in the writer's judgment, are the ripe fruit of a nation's forgetfulness of God and his law.

It is estimated that out of 90,000,000 professed Christians in the United States only about five per cent have family worship in their homes.

Mobilize Christians

With 800,000,000 people, one-third of the world's total population, now under the domination of Godless Russia, isn't it about time that we Christians, ninety million of us, begin to seriously heed our professed religion by closing ranks and mobilizing, in true Christian fashion, for concerted action in behalf of the peace and freedom we so ardently desire for ourselves, and for freedom-loving peoples everywhere. Such action on the part of ninety million God-fearing people would command world-wide attention. It would afford the example envisioned by those believers in America's divinely appointed mission and would tend to satisfy allied nations that Christianity has been the motivating force back of our help and assistance, rather than imperialism, world domination and self-aggrandizement.

One other thing should be mentioned. The moral, spiritual, and patriotic fiber of the rising generation has, in my opinion, been dangerously weakened by the desire for security with the least possible effort, rather than for opportunity. We cannot have security, gratis and freedom, too. Just to the extent that we lean on, and become the beneficiaries of, the State, just to that extent are we no longer free—just to that extent America's mission is a lost cause.

Key To Freedom

A book just off the press, entitled "The Key to Peace," by Dean Clarence Manion, of Notre Dame university, supports the American Mission idea. Its theme is that the founding fathers had the key to freedom and peace for Americans, and for all men; that they wrote it into

The Declaration of Independence. We find the key, as he sees it, in the words of the Declaration: "THAT ALL MEN ARE CREATED EQUAL; THAT THEY ARE ENDOWED BY THEIR CREATOR WITH CERTAIN INALIENABLE RIGHTS; THAT AMONG THESE ARE LIFE, LIBERTY, AND THE PURSUIT OF HAPPINESS." This was the first time, he writes, that a government based itself on the sanctity of every man's personal individualism, and dedicated itself to protect and preserve that sacred right x x x Europe's hope and the rest of the world, he says, lies in understanding and adopting the Key To Peace given by the founding fathers, and it is up to us to conduct ourselves that they will understand it. He urges all Americans to rediscover and renew their own understanding of the principles and the spirit on and in which their nation was founded, and which are foreign to every other government in the world.

PREDICT FINE'S INCOME TAX IS GOING TO PASS

Harrisburg, March 24 (AP)—Gov. John S. Fine's two top leaders in the Legislature forecast today that his proposal for a half of one per cent income tax would clear the Legislature.

Both Speaker Herbert P. Sorg (R-Eik) and Sen. John J. Walker, Republican floor leader in the Senate, said the measure would receive enough votes to pass both the Senate and House.

"I believe there is sufficient sentiment for Governor Fine's income tax plan to assure its passage in the House," said Sorg.

Alternate Proposal

And Walker echoed a similar sentiment for the Republican majority in the Senate despite the announcement of three Republican senators that they were not in favor of an income tax. "When the time comes to vote on this bill, there will be enough votes to pass it," said Walker.

Sen. G. Graybill Diehm (R-Lancaster) came out with an alternative proposal for raising $163,500,000 in new revenue in the next two years. He suggested that the corporate net income tax go up from four per cent to six per cent instead of only one per cent as Fine suggested.

He also proposed that present taxes on gross receipts of public utilities, cigarettes and beer be boosted and that the present soft drinks levy be continued despite Fine's recommendation that it be dropped. Diehm also suggested a new impost on cigars and smoking tobacco.

Diehm and two of his Republican colleagues, Sen. John C. Snowden (Lycoming) and Sen. C. Arthur Blass (Erie), have announced their opposition to the income tax. None, however, has said he would vote against the measure when it came up for floor action. Their votes are important if the administration wants to clear the tax program through the Senate.

At present, the 20 Democratic senators have denounced the income tax and said they would vote against it.

The Republican majority has 30 votes in the Senate. Twenty-six votes are needed to pass a bill. A possible defection created by Diehm, Blass and Snowden would leave the GOP with only one more vote than is needed to pass the income tax. The governor has indicated the income tax measure would be submitted to the Legislature Monday.

NEW CROP OF PRICE AND WAGE PROBLEMS UP

Washington, March 24 (AP)—A new crop of price, wage and production problems sprang up today to plague the nation's mobilization officials.

One of these—the pay raise claims of 1,000,000 railroad workers—posed a major threat to wage stabilization. Another—a 25 per cent slash in tire and tube deliveries for new passenger cars—appeared certain to bring strong protests from the automobile industry and some auto buyers.

The government itself was caught in a squeeze by the railway wage raise claim. Since the army took over the railroads last August to avert a strike threat, it is technically responsible for terms and conditions of employment.

Perils Wage Formula
Under their labor contracts, the railroad workers are assured pay boosts to meet rising living costs. The Bureau of Labor Statistics' latest cost-of-living index, released last night, gave them grounds for claiming a six-cent hourly raise. But this, added to the 12½ cents granted March 1 by the carriers would shatter the government's wage formula which restricts raises to 10 per cent above January 15, 1950, levels.

A spokesman for Assistant Secretary of Defense Carl Bendetsen, who has been running the railroads for the army, said present plans call for carrying out the workers' contract provisions. Bendetsen himself was not available for comment.

HCL At New Peak
But Economic Stabilizer Eric Johnston has refused to approve a beyond-ceiling raise for 220,000 meat packinghouse workers. His office said he had not been asked to approve the railroad hike, but probably would treat it the same way. The cost-of-living index hit a new high as of February 15: It climbed 1.3 points in the preceding month to 183.8 per cent of the 1935-39 base period. This was eight per cent above the pre-Korean war level for June, 1950.

The first date on which an adjustment would be made for the railroad workers would be April 7, but the majority of workers would not get the new rates until the middle of April. This gave the army and stabilization officials a slight breathing spell before any real crisis develops.

Deep Cut In Tires
The cut in tires for new passenger cars was even deeper than the 20 per cent reduction in steel for automobiles which previously had been ordered. It is effective April 1, the National Production Authority (NPA) announced last night. NPA also disclosed that tire inventories of distributors, including wholesalers and retailers, will be limited after that date to a 30-day supply.

The NPA said manufacturers will be allowed to deliver only 75 per cent as many tires and tubes to passenger car makers for use as original equipment during the second quarter of this year as during the first quarter.

Officials indicated the cut was ordered because of mounting defense use of rubber and a loss of about 4,000 long tons in the production of synthetic rubber expected in April. Fires and other operational difficulties at synthetic plants were blamed for the expected production drop.

Government Of, By And For The People

prove his loyalty to the United States? Probably not, for he had not heard of such things required from an alien who became a citizen. As he melted away into the foggy night, his steps never faltered or stumbled.

Gift Beyond Dreams

America—a new land of opportunity and progress—was open to him. He held within the palm of his hand freedoms he had never dreamed of owning. But why were these benefits bestowed upon him to use as he saw fit? Who cared for him this much? The government of the United States cared for him and desired to give him every equal opportunity that other Americans had. They wanted him to live in democracy—that form of society in which each man shall play the part for which he is best fitted.

Democracy—a word often used and not understood many times—is what Lincoln meant when he uttered those famous words of his. This form of government gives to the American people an opportunity to build their dreams into realities. We are assured rights and privileges that give us complete freedom over our actions, thoughts and deeds.

Where else in the world could you find so many unrestrained rights and privileges? Not in the war-ravaged countries of Europe, where one is extremely fortunate to secure enough food to satisfy his craving. Certainly not in China, Korea, or other Asiatic countries where overpowering forces dominate all lives concerned. No, other people do not have the same freedoms we do, consequently they do not understand our everyday democracy.

Our democracy is a form of life—it's the way we live—the way we conduct ourselves in our everyday life. We cannot escape it, for it is around us everywhere we go—in the street, in the office, at home and school. We are given equal terms with the senator when we go into the market to buy meat. We have the right to say what we think in our newspapers and other literary journals. If a wrong has been committed, we are entitled to a just and lawful trial.

As illustrated above, democracy belongs to us—it is of the people. We should never "disinherit" democracy, but rather preserve ourselves worthy of such a privilege. Our thoughts and actions toward our fellow man could be greatly improved. The banishment of hatred, prejudice and self-centeredness would indeed strengthen our ties between our brothers.

Do Each Job Well

In our relations with the business world we should strive to do our best in our work, humble though it may be. It may not be the most distinguished or note-worthy position in the world, but a job well-done outshines any "high-flung" position that involves dishonesty and corruption.

Life in a community—living with our fellow citizens—is not to be neglected in our allegiance to our democracy. Community projects demand many unselfish hours of service and sacrifice. The community is the foundation of a great network of freedom called democracy. Without our aid, it would fall to pieces and noble and worthy deeds would be lost in the excuse of "too many meetings—don't have enough time tonight" and many other petty excuses used as an alibi.

Our democracy was entrusted to us by our forefathers—men of unflinching courage who struggled through innumerable hardships to win these rights and privileges for us. They gave them to us—it is our government—by the people.

Begin In The Home

Our responsibilities to our government begin in our home. It is a very small place to begin, but the foundation of a government must be strong if the government is to survive. Little chores that are assigned to us should never be delayed, but done promptly and efficiently. Contributions for solving home problems strengthen the foundation of our modern government.

Activeness in our school life is another factor in making democracy live. Dramatic clubs, journalism, musical interest and sports develop a student into a better citizen, more tolerant to other people and their peculiarities. A student in school lives a miniature life of what he will live when he gets out into the world, and he must prepare himself for this. Scholastic grades should be given deep consideration in student's life, for his knowledge gained in school is the tool with which he will work in later life.

One cannot be confined to school and home life, but is subject to developments in the community. A well-rounded citizen should enter into community life with all his talents and abilities to improve conditions for all concerned.

Duties Of Citizenship

Communities join together to form localities, and localities in turn form states. Every citizen is under the law of his state, and should therefore take his part in the government of the state. It is his right and duty to vote for candidates for state office, not just whenever he feels like going to the polls, but whenever the occasion arises. A citizen that has no interest in his state government is inviting corrupt forms of government to flourish.

Along with state allegiance goes allegiance to our country—in war and in peace. If the need for military service arises, a citizen should not hesitate in the least bit to protect his country. Those on the home front are as vital to the country's survival as the fighting forces, and they should use their time and efforts to encourage and support their fighting forces.

If no need for military strength arises, a citizen is still faced with duties and obligations to his country. Taxes should be paid promptly with no murmur or dissatisfaction, for the government that protects us and bestows unlimited freedom upon us needs means to support itself. We should serve on juries whenever asked, go to the polls to elect the candidate of our choice and help to enforce the law because these are our responsibilities to our native land.

Human Relations

Overall good citizenship includes many personal traits too. Obedience to those about us, service to our fellow human beings and loyalty to our country distinguish the man who strives to help his country from the uninterested citizen. One will never regret that he has controlled his thoughts, emotions and tongue with his associates. Another responsibility of a citizen is to earn an honest living for himself and those who are dependent upon him. He should take pride in his work, and use his talents and abilities effectively. Never should he let his morale drop, but keep his goals high to accomplish his purpose.

Only with these characteristics can a citizen strengthen his government and help to preserve the ideals and purposes of his government.

We must realize that this government of the United States belongs to us—it is for the people. Some forms of government exist only for the welfare of the leaders, but that is not so in America. The people are the
